HEAT SURVIVAL CENTER OPENS The Salvation Army has opened the first Quad-City emergency heat survival center at its Corps Community Center, 3007 East 23rd St. All those without air conditioning and those finding it hard to bear the heatwave which the area is experiencing are welcome at the center. Eight persons took advantage of the center on Tuesday, the first day of operation. Salvation Army volunteers are offering free transportation to the air conditioned center in addition to cots, food and other essentials for overnight accomodations. Some staff members, standing in the background, try to entertain several young children staying at the center. Pamilies, senior citizens and anyone else not able to cope with the heat are welcomed.

Limb pickup dilema due to manpower shortage

The Granite City Council

The Granite City Council Tuesday night asked the street superintendent, police chief and city attorney to hold a meeting to study what can be done to keep limbs from building up in streets then bring a recommendation back to the council in the near future. The issue of dried limbs thrown in the street, which create a fire hazard, block streets, does gutters and pedestrians on sidewalts has been brought up at every city council meeting since Street Superintendent Lionel Portell discontinued the limb prickups for the summer.

Portell discontinued the limb pickups for the summer. Alderman Roy Poulos of the Third Ward, who nor-mally initiates the discussions about the limbs in the streets, brought if up-again Tuesday night and said he believes something should be done.

Portell said he utilized the citied date. "All our crews a now are on atreet repairs, sidewalks and curbs, and if we start backing off on the things that cause us lawsuits and other problems, the jobs won't get done," he predicted.

"Something has to be done about it. Either we provide the men to do it (pick up limbs) or prohibit, it (throwing limbs in the street). Either enforcement or the council tell the street department they will pick up limbs all year around," Douglas said.

Douglas said.

Other aldermen pointed out that the council has no authority to tell Portell how to run his department, since Portell is an elected city official and the council has authority only to approve or disapprove of his budget.

Alderman Sam Whitmer of the Second Ward recalled when former city attorney Lance Callis told the council it is illegal for residents to put limbs and brush on city property, even when the street department is picking it to.

street department to the time. Mayor Paul Schuler then suggested that the street superintendent, the police chief and City Attorney John Papa attempt to come up with a recommendation on the problem for the council to consider.

Games, races, tugs-of-war, singing and crafts. That's what 237 Cub-Scouts participating in the Cub Scout day camp on Monday came to do. And all the while having fun with old and new friends.

Scouts from all over the Cahokia Mound Council, from as far away as Pocahontas, came to Wilson Park to join in the fun during the two-week day camp program.

This is the second week of the day camp. Other activities during the two-weeks included swimming at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville on Tuesdays, boating, hiking and other outdor activities at Highland on Wednesdays and a trip to Camp Sunnen on both Thursdays.

Also planned for this evening is a party in honor of the 50 years of Cub Scouting during which Dr. Harry Epstein, 90, will be honored as the oldest living cubmaster in the council.
